

Colonial Latin America: A Summer Institute for Educators

Part I. Workshop at Yale and NYC

July 4-8, 2011

This Summer Institute will explore the theme of Colonial Latin America to understand the ways in which the colonial period contributed to the modern Latin American identity. The K-12 and post-secondary educators will participate in a dynamic and intensive week-long workshop that will build upon the expertise of scholars from diverse disciplines specializing in Latin America.

Part II. Optional Field Trip: Dominican Republic

July 9 – 16, 2011

The week-long field trip will provide the opportunity to deepen educators' knowledge about Colonial Latin America as they participate in lectures, discussions, architectural tours, and guided visits with experts to archaeological sites, art museums, architectural sites, local communities and plantation zones.

Registration fee for Part I: $150 (includes all materials)

Cost of field trip TBD

For more information, please contact Julianne Baker at julianne.bakergallegos@yale.edu

Sponsored by PIER, The Council on Latin American & Iberian Studies at Yale, the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies at NYU and the U.S. Department of Education through a Title VI National Resource Center grant.

